

BEXTER RICHARDSON (BEX)

ARTIST | ENGINEER | ENTREPRENEUR

A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY

Bexter Richardson, "Bex" for short, is a Liberian-American singer, songwriter, audio engineer, and entrepreneur based in the United States. Bex emerges as a transformative figure in the global music landscape, blending Afrobeats, Hip Hop, Reggae, and R&B while expanding his influence beyond the studio. His journey from West Africa (Liberia, Ghana, Nigeria) to the United States (Nashville and Baltimore) reflects a fusion of cultural heritage and musical ambition, positioning him as a bridge between continents and genres; thus, influencing the titles of his album series, "Mr. International". Bex is CEO and founder of Fourscore Technologies, a small tech startup providing IT network and cybersecurity services to the public and private sectors.

In 2020, Bex launched a foundation focused on mentoring and rehabilitating street children and at-risk youth. The foundation underscores his mission to leverage music as a tool for social transformation, combining education, mentorship, and community support to create lasting impact.

ABOUT THE MUSIC

Identity

Afrofusion: Afrobeats, Hip Hop, Reggae, and R&B

- As a native of West Africa, the influence of Afrobeats gives identity to the style while the Hip Hop and R&B culture also form a strong part of the musical identity from living in the United States and connection to specific areas like Miami, Atlanta and the "DMV".

Vision

Fused Contents

- The vision is to use music to influence culture. Every sound, every rhythm, every melody, every sale saves a life.

Intention

Enrich Culture

- The intention is to create contents that fuse the Afrobeats flavors with other international genres, creating a global melody that play an influential role on in the local and global communities around the world.
